Public Safety

Public Safety Director Troy Riggs announced on July 8, 2013 a plan to get more officers responding to runs on the street.

This plan calls for placing 156 more officers back in patrol functions:

- 116 officers are already being put back in the run queue now
- 40 additional officers will be moved from administrative roles by the end of next year
- These officers will be replaced by civilians, who cost 60% less than sworn officers
- Two recruit classes in 2014 and 2016 will also help stabilize the number of officers on the street in a fiscally responsible way

City Fleet & Energy Security

- Indy has pledged to buy only electric or plug-in hybrid electric fleet vehicles, which translates to a savings of $12,000 per car over the vehicle life
- Indy will transition snow plows, trash trucks and fire apparatus to compressed natural gas (CNG)
- Indy will also partner with auto manufacturers to develop a real response-ready electric or a plug-in hybrid police car that gets 40-50 MPG

City Fleet & Energy Security

On July 9, Indianapolis Fire Department Chief Brian Sanford and Public Safety Director Riggs announced the results of one of Director Riggs' efficiency team reports, which calls for the upgrade of more than 1,000 Public Safety vehicles to Plug-Ins or EVs

- This move will save taxpayers $8 million over five years
- Some of the upgrades include:
 - Transition current diesel vehicles to domestically produced B20 fuel
 - Transition existing IMPD non-pursuit vehicles to domestic E85 fuel
 - Purchase of plug-in hybrid vehicles for non-pursuit personnel
 - Develop a capital purchase schedule for DPS vehicles

Economic Development

- Tinderbox, Inc. was started in 2010 in Indianapolis and is a cloud-based sales and marketing company that is expanding by creating 95 new jobs by 2016
- The company is also investing $540,000 to grow its business locally

"It was an easy decision to choose Indiana as the place to expand with its growing high-tech sector and stable business climate."
